SIXTY GRADUATES GIVEN DIPLOMAS

Honorary Degrees Conferred upon
Men of Reputation. John Reed
Scott Honored by his Alma Mater.
Close of Commencement.

With the conferring of degrees and the awarding of diplomas, the eighty third commencement of Gettysburg College came to a close this morning, sixty Seniors completing their course at the local institution.

Preceding the exercises in the chapel was the academic procession. It include the faculty, the candidates for honorary degrees, the Seniors and the members of the lower classes. All except the undergraduates were in the usual garb and the procession made a very attractive appearance.

In the chapel the college orchestra rendered as the opening number of the program the "Triumphal March from Aida," the invocation was pronounced by Dr. J. M. Reimensnyder, of the class of 1870, and the college hymn was sung. John H. L. Trout gave the salutatory oration, and the address to the graduates was made by Dr. Talcott Williams, formerly editor of The Philadelphia Press, and now dean of the School of Journalism of Columbia University.

Dr. John Henry MacCracken, of Lafayette College, made the other address of the morning, speaking briefly, and the valedictory was given by Charles Gruber. The conferring of the honorary degrees followed, these men being presented to President Granville and receiving their diplomas and hoods in the usual ceremony:

Doctor of Laws: Talcott Williams,
Litt. D., LL. D., Dean of Columbia University School of Journalism;
John Henry MacCracken, Ph. D., LL.
D., President of Lafayette College;
Lewis Muhlenberg Haupt, C. E., Sc.
D., engineering author, writer and inventor, former member of Nicaragua Canal Commission and of the Isthmian Canal Commission.

Doctor of Literature: Henry E.
Harman, '85, of Atlanta, Georgia, journalist, poet; John Reed Scott, '89,
of Gettysburg, novelist and historian.
Doctor of Divinity: Rev. John Calvin Giddard, of Salisbury, Ct., eminent divine, writer and lecturer; Rev.
S. D. Daugherty, '88, of Philadelphia, missionary to South America and Pennsylvania superintendent in the East.
Pennsylvania Synod.

Master of Arts: Professor C. A.
Peterson, Upsala College.

The honors and prizes falling to the students of the college were announced as they appear on page three of to-day's Gettysburg Times and the diplomas were presented to the sixty graduates whose names are also given in this paper to-day.

The singing of Luther's battle hymn and the benediction closed the morning's exercises after which the alumni collation was served in Glat-felter Hall by the ladies of town. The meeting of the alumni followed immediately. Charles S. Duncan acting as toastmaster and a number responding.

Tuesday evening of the week was gay with the President's reception and a number of class and fraternity reunions, banquets and dances.

Many of the graduates and visitors here for the week left this afternoon for their homes. The commencement was one of the best in the history of the college and a decided success throughout.

IN WASH MACHINE

Arm Caught and Bone Broken at Steam Laundry.

While feeding a wash machine at the steam laundry this morning, Samuel Knox, of Steinwehr avenue, had his left arm caught and broken between the elbow and the wrist. Mr.
Knox was putting some sheets into the machine with his right hand and stuffing them in with his left. One of the sheets caught in an overhead lever which threw the machine into gear and his left hand was quickly caught. Fortunately he had sufficient presence of mind to throw off the belt before any more serious injury resulted.

strawberry social at Aspers, Saturday evening, June 12th. Soup, sandwiches,

FIXED ROUTE ON THE BATTLEFIELD

Proposed for the Guides. Charges also Likely to be Regulated. Older Guides will Probably Escape Examinations.

That the battlefield guides will be required to follow a prescribed route in taking tourists over the field, and that they will have fixed charges for their services are two of the expected developments in the examination and licensing of the men who make a business of conducting visitors over the avenues. The process of examining the guides will be started within a comparatively short time, it is expected, the blanks having been received at the office of the National Park Commission.

Colonel John P. Nicholson, chairman, when interviewed this morning, said that on one day recently sixty out of seventy seven cars turned at Wheat Field road and the only view their occupants had of the Round Tops was from a distance. They were never taken over the hills and missed one of the most beautiful and most important points of the entire field.
That this was not fair or just, was the expression of Colonel Nicholson and the condition will not be permitted to continue.

Regarding fixed charges it was stated at the office of the Park Commission that a letter had been received this morning stating that three persons had been charged $7.50 for the trip over the battlefield. To avoid extortionate rates, the rules will be made accordingly and guides offending will be liable to have their permits revoked.

That some of the guides will likely be exempt from the tests was the expression of Colonel Nicholson.
Those who took part in the battle, and those who, by reason of their long service and recognized ability, are known to be thoroughly competent will in all probability be saved the time and trouble of undergoing the tests and will be licensed following the recommendation of reputable citizens.

"It is not our desire," said Colonel Nicholson, "to take from any one of the competent guides this means of earning a livelihood, and it is not our intention to work any unnecessary hardship. Some of the guides know as much about the battle as a committee who might examine them, and it would be manifestly without point to make them undergo the tests which the others will have to take."
Regarding the time of the examinations no date has been set and it is not yet stated whether they will be written or oral, but it is thought more likely that the tests will be oral.
The licenses will be revocable at any time. Guides will be furnished with badges which they will be required to surrender upon voluntarily ceasing to act as guide or upon the revocation of the license.

NO DEBT

College Fraternity Accomplishes Remarkable Results with House.

Alpha Tau Omega's new $7000 fraternity house on North Washington street was dedicated on Tuesday free of debt. Dr. John L. Rothrock, of St. Paul, made a $1000 donation toward the building, provided the balance were all subscribed on or before the day of dedication and the other alumni met the requirement.
When it is considered that this fraternity is next to the youngest at the college, and that its other house was completely destroyed by fire less than sixteen months ago, the young men and the alumni managing the financial end of the campaign deserve great credit for their energy and efficiency.

It was announced Tuesday evening at their banquet that Victory Frey, Esq., of Philadelphia, a graduate of the class of 1901, would be appointed chief of Province Five of the fraternity, which embraces Eastern Pennsylvania and a part of New York.

ENTERTAINMENT

Program Given by Children of Parochial Schools.

In Xavier Hall, beautifully decorated with scores of festoons and spring flowers, the first part of the commencement days of the Parochial Schools was held on Tuesday evening before a most appreciative audience.
The commencement proper will take place this evening.

The program on Tuesday night was given by members of all the grades.
Choruses, a double quartet, instrumental numbers and a cantata, "Summer Fairies," composed the musical portion of the evening. The physical culture class of nine girls gave a beautiful exhibition of Indian club swinging and the playlet "Everygraduate—His Quest for Success" was most ably given, depicting the trials and difficulties, the struggles and triumphs of the young man and woman of to-day when they leave school to "face the world."

The entire program gave a most pleasant evening to the audience and paved the way for the commencement exercises to-night when four graduates will receive their diplomas, the honors and prizes will be awarded,
and the address will be made by Rev.
H. B. Strickland, of Fairfield.

TWO PLAYERS ARE RELEASED

Reeder and Grove Quit Gettysburg Patriots. Pitching Staff in Need of Rest. Hoar Rushed to Rescue against Hagerstown.

Two more Gettysburg base ball men were given their unconditional releases on Tuesday evening, Reeder requesting his freedom, and Grove being let go on account of the arrival of the college boys who were signed earlier in the season.

The management and fans are sorry to see Reeder go. He played an excellent game at bat and on the bases, but has been suffering for some time with a weak arm and, realizing this, told Manager Plank that he did not feel justified in continuing on the pay roll. Grove also made good during his short stay with the club but had to be released to make way for better men.

Just now the pitching staff is worrying the directors greatly. Howard has been used too frequently to allow a reasonable amount of rest and he is not going as well as he might if given time to recuperate. Stair has not fully recovered from his heat attack of Monday. Lower admits that he is not in condition, and Rudolph has failed to show any form in the box. That constitutes the entire staff and Hoar was rushed to the rescue to-day to officiate against Hagerstown.

Another matter that is attracting the attention of the fans here and elsewhere on the circuit is the question of umpiring. Hanks has gotten in wrong during games at Gettysburg, at Hanover, at Martinsburg, and at Chambersburg, his decisions at all four places being seriously contested by the players, while at Martinsburg on Tuesday adherents of both sides said that he was far wrong in his work.

In the ninth inning with Plank Jarosick, Kelly, and Oyler due to bat, his calling of strikes was so far off that the West Virginia people objected from the bleachers, claiming Gettysburg was not being given fair treatment. The Patriots are not blaming their defeat on the umpire—let that be clearly understood—but Hanks will have to come a little better, it is believed, if he is to continue in favor.

Just in passing it might be said that the Gettysburg fans who witnessed Tuesday's game returned home with the highest regard for Martinsburg's base ball followers.
They are a clean lot of rooters, out for the sake of good sport and wanting the better team to win.

The favorable opinion is mutual according to the Martinsburg "Journal", which says, "Plank's bunch of Patriots looked mighty good to the local fans."

TWO FIRES

Movie Film Cause of One Threatening Blaze.

Playing children caused two fires in town on Tuesday afternoon. The first blaze occurred at the home of Frederick Diehl, North Stratton street, when the curtains were ignited by matches with which a child was playing. A neighbor saw the flames which burned some bed-clothing and curtains before it was put out.

The second fire was at the home of R. Lee Tipton when some children playing on the garret with a magic lantern, tried to use a piece of "movie" film. It took fire and spread to a mattress nearby. The fire company was called out but its services were not required.

SEE COLLEGE MEN'S MISSION

Would Have Graduates Take Greater Interest in National and International Affairs. Talcott Williams Speaks in Brua Chapel.

In his address to the commencement audience in Brua Chapel this morning
Dr. Talcott Williams spoke impres-sively upon the necessity of the coming generation devising some means to supplant conflicts similar to that in which Europe is at present engaged.

He endeavored to convey to the graduating class the important part that they, as individuals, will have to perform in this "World Work." The small percentage of college graduates who in the past have contributed to the direction of affairs at large was cited, with the admonition that this percentage will of necessity increase during the next thirty or forty years, and it is the duty of these young men to be prepared to assume these positions.

Dr. Williams deplored the present condition, which he stated could only be overcome by intelligence. He also suggested that the best preventive for war at the present time was the virtue of being prepared for defense.
If it were evident that a country was in position to defend itself against any onslaught that might be made, the probability of imposition would be removed.

While his address was a decidedly finished product, his earnest manner of delivery seemed to hold the attention of the audience to an unusual degree. Men who give considerable attention to the world's affairs apparently thought it portended a new era of seriousness, the idea of which at this time it would be difficult to convey in words.

SECRETARY BRYAN LEAVES THE CABINET

Resignation Quickly Accepted.

LANSING IN CHARGE

Differed With President on the German Note.

COULD NOT BE RECONCILED

The Secretary Wished to Avoid Trouble With Kaiser.

Washington, June 9.—Secretary of State Bryan submitted his resignation to President Wilson and it was accepted.

Robert Lansing, counselor of the state department, automatically will become acting secretary of state. It was stated authoritatively that Mr. Bryan's resignation, which had been under consideration for several days, was accomplished with the utmost good feeling between the secretary of state and President Wilson. It resulted from differences of opinion over the note about to be sent to Germany.

It was learned that the secretary of state's hour of delay in reaching the cabinet meeting was due to time consumed in the preparation of his letter of resignation.

Officials let it be known that Secretary Bryan determined to leave the cabinet because of his desire not to embarrass the president by his opposition to the policy of the administration in the present foreign situation.

While Secretary Bryan's attitude toward the situation which has arisen between the country and Germany is not definitely known, it has been generally believed that he favored a note of the character which, under no circumstances, would involve the United States in grave complications.

Bryan's Letter of Resignation.

In submitting his resignation, Mr. Bryan outlined his viewpoint on the administration's policy. The following is his letter of resignation:

"My Dear Mr. Bryan—It is with sincere regret that I have reached the conclusion that I should return to you the commission of secretary of state with which you honored me at the beginning of your administration.

"Obedient to your sense of duty and actuated by the highest motives, you have prepared for transmission to the German government a note in which I cannot join without violating what I deem to be an obligation to my country, and the issues involved are of such moment that to remain a member of the cabinet would be as unfair to you as it would be to the cause which is nearest my heart, namely, the prevention of war.

"I therefore, respectfully tender my resignation, to take effect when the note is sent, unless you prefer an earlier hour. Alike desirous of reaching a peaceful solution of the problems arising out of the use of submarines against merchantmen, we find ourselves differing irreconcilably as to the methods which should be employed.

"It falls to your lot to speak officially for the nation; I consider it to be none the less my duty to endeavor as a private citizen to promote the end which you have in view by means which you do not feel at liberty to use.

"In severing the intimate and pleasant relations which have existed between us during the past two years, permit me to express the profound satisfaction which it has given me to be associated with you in the important work which has come before the state department, and to thank you for the courtesies extended.

"With the heartiest good wishes for your personal welfare and for the success of your administration, I am, my dear Mr. President,

"Very truly yours,

"W. J. BRYAN."

President Wilson's Acceptance.

President Wilson's acceptance of the resignation was as follows:

"My Dear Mr. Bryan—I accept your resignation only because you insist upon its acceptance, and I accept it with much more than deep regret, with a feeling of personal sorrow. Our two years of close association have been very delightful to me. Our judgments have accorded in practically every matter of official duty and of public policy until now; your support of the work and purposes of the administration has been generous and loyal beyond praise; your devotion to the duties of your great office and your eagerness to take advantage of great opportunity for service it offered has been an example to the rest of us; you have earned our affectionate admiration and friendship. Even now we are not separated in the object we seek, but only in the method by which we seek it.

"It is for these reasons my feeling about your retirement from the secretaryship of state goes so much deeper than regret. I sincerely deplore it. Our objects are the same, and we ought to pursue them together. I yield to your desire only because I must and wish to bid you Godspeed in the pathing. We shall continue to work for the same causes even when we do not work in the same way.

"With affectionate regards, sincerely yours,

"WOODROW WILSON."

sign the forthcoming note to Germany.

In official circles the belief was generally expressed that Mr. Lansing would be appointed secretary of state ad interim. He is said to be in entire accord with the president's views on the nation's foreign policy.

The resignation was based on the refusal of Secretary Bryan to sign the note that President Wilson will send to Germany, making rejoinder to the German reply to President Wilson's note of May 13 protesting against Germany's submarine attacks on unarmed merchantmen and demanding that submarine warfare on such vessels should cease.

President Wilson insisted upon "standing pat" on the position he took when the note of May 13 was sent, and has drafted a reply that will reiterate his demand that Germany cease its attacks on unarmed merchantmen.

Cabinet Supports President.

Secretary Bryan has been endeavoring to have the president revise his decision, but the president, backed by his cabinet and supported by American public opinion, insists upon his position and the note that has been drafted, and which was approved at the cabinet meeting will go forward without revision or compromise.

The note will be signed "Lansing, acting," the signature of Robert Lansing as acting secretary of state, and will be sent today. The moment it is sent the resignation of Secretary Bryan becomes effective.

During the cabinet meeting of last Tuesday, it also developed, Secretary Bryan delivered a peace speech in the cabinet, in which he indicated his belief that the course the administration was pursuing would probably lead to war with Germany.

RUMANIA WANTS MORE

The Allies' Terms Unsatisfactory, According to Berlin.

Cologne, June 9.—The chances that Bulgaria and Rumania will enter the war with the allies are diminishing daily, says a dispatch from Berlin to the Cologne Gazette.

"The political heavens of the Balkans have cleared somewhat," the dispatch says. "Rumania has rejected the first offer of the Triple Entente (Great Britain, France and Russia) as unsatisfactory.

"Bulgaria also has received offers from the Triple Entente. It is not known that Bulgaria has formally rejected them, but she is in agreement with Rumania, and since the latter has rejected the offers Bulgaria probably will do likewise."

MOTOR BANDITS GET $8500

Hold Up Two Men, Beat Them and Get Away in Automobile.

New York, June 9.—Another daylight hold-up, this time by automobile bandits, who robbed two men on their way in a buggy to deposit money in a bank.

The robbers got away with a satchel containing $8500. The victims were George A. Linstead, cashier, and Thomas J. Boyd, superintendent of a branch office of the Borden's Condensed Milk company, who were driving through a sparsely settled district of the Bronx.

They were held up with revolvers by three men, who, after beating them and stealing the satchel, ran across a footbridge over the New York Central tracks, entered an automobile and escaped.

President to Join "Vets."

Washington, June 9.—President Wilson promised to attend the Confederate memorial day exercises in Arlington National cemetery next Sunday afternoon. The president does not expect to speak.

FRENCH EXTEND FIGHTING AREA

May Force Germans to Make General Retreat.

ADVANCING IN "LABYRINTH"

Pushing Offensive From the Aisne to British Front Against Desperate German Counter Attacks.

London, June 9.—Virtually the entire western line of battle, except those positions held by the Belgians and the British, has been the scene of what would appear to be a series of offensive movements by the French.

In the region of Arras the French have extended the area of their attack, while they are pressing all along the front from the angle of the Aisne and the Oise in a northerly direction as far as the British positions near La Bassée.

For the past three weeks the French have been advancing slowly but steadily in the country immediately north of Arras. Here they met determined resistance from the German forces on a position known as "the Labyrinth," part of which, however, is now in their control.

Desperate German counter attacks, according to the French report, have been made, but without success and with terrible losses to the attackers. The German official announcement makes but brief reference to events on the western front, merely recording repulses of French attacks.

Paris expects that the entire German line from the Labyrinth to Abain will be forced shortly to make a general retreat, leaving the long incline series of trenches in the hands of the French.

Not far from Moulin-sous-Toutvent, north of the Aisne, where French troops captured two lines of trenches on Sunday, the Germans spent Sunday night and Monday in making violent counter attacks. The fighting here is described as most desperate, the Germans having brought up reinforcements in automobiles. At the close of the day 2000 dead German soldiers were counted on the newly captured ground.

Thirty yards of German trenches were blown up by a mine at Ploegsteert on Sunday. It is announced in official dispatches from British headquarters in France. Ploegsteert is in Belgium, three miles north of Arras.

Canadian Casualties to Date 8008.

Ottawa, June 9.—The Canadian casualty list to date totals 8008 men, consisting of 1213 killed, 5230 wounded and 1565 missing, according to the records of the militia department.

BIG BATTLES IN EAST

Petrograd Admits Foe Crossed Dniester in Drive Through Galicia.

Petrograd, June 9.—The war office communication says: "Fighting continued in the Shavli region June 5 and 6, without essential change in the general situation. Artillery duels still prevailed at Osowiczy.

"Between the Skwa and Rozoga rivers the enemy made an ineffectual attempt to assume the offensive. There was artillery firing in the Orzic valley and the region of Przasnysz on the 6th.

"On the left bank of the Vistula and on the San and Lubaczowka rivers there is no change in the situation.

"In the direction of Moselska, on the 5th and on the morning of the 6th, the enemy made obstinate attacks on the left bank of the Wisznia and on the front of Cieszk, Pakost and Ostrozog. Southeast of Radevica a hand-to-hand engagement lasted a long time.

"On the Dniester the enemy has not renewed his offensive in the direction of Nikolajiff, but he unsuccessfully attacked our bridge heads near Zhdaczow.

"In the region of Zurawna the enemy succeeded on the night of the 6th in crossing the Dniester with some of his units.

"In the valley of the Lukwa we repulsed an enemy attack, taking more than 400 prisoners.

"In the region west of Kolomea the enemy ceased his determined attacks against our forces and has been thrown back with heavy losses. Before the front of one of our divisions the Austrians abandoned their dead. In the attack in this region we took twenty officers and 700 men prisoners."

King of Italy Narrowly Escapes Death

Milan, June 9.—King Victor Emmanuel narrowly escaped death while visiting the Italian battle front, it was learned here. An Austrian shell burst within fifty yards of the monarch, showering a large area with bits of metal. The king was unharmed.

Cuts Throat; Rides to Doctor.

York, Pa., June 9.—George Emig, twenty-one years old, residing near New Park, attempted suicide by slashing himself with a pocketknife. He was sitting in his automobile alone when he cut his throat and then drove the car to the office of a nearby physician. He may recover.

POPE READY TO WORK WITH U. S. FOR PEACE

Praises the President and Attitude of America.

Rome, June 9.—Pope Benedict XV. gave an audience to Miss Jane Adams, of Chicago, and Dr. Aletta Jacobs, of Holland, representatives of the woman's peace conference.

It was stated that in the course of his audience his holiness said: "I am ready now or at any future time to co-operate with President Wilson in any move that is destined to bring peace in Europe. I realize that the whole world is looking to the Vatican to take the initiative in restoring peace, but I believe that the movement must originate in America, which is the greatest neutral power in the world, and which, up to this time, has maintained a high standard of strict neutrality."

"I feel that it is only the matter of great national pride that prevents an early peace."

"I commend you and your organization for your noble efforts," his holiness told his visitors. "I pray that success will crown them."

Deny Peace Overtures.

London, June 9.—A Copenhagen dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company says: "The Berlin Lokal Anzeiger in an article evidently inspired protests against assertions made by Serlus Sazonoff, the Russian foreign minister, that Germany is trying to make a separate peace with Russia."

The newspaper asserts there is no reason why Germany should seek peace, but that when she has conquered her enemies they can sue at Berlin for a cessation of hostilities.

Puts Ban on War Airs.

Reading, Pa., June 9.—To avoid any trouble at municipal band concerts, Mayor Stratton announced that no French, German, British or Italian patriotic or national airs will be allowed on the programs. He will censor each list of selections before the concerts. Only the classics by European composers will be allowed. "Die Wacht am Rhein," "Tipperary," "The Marseillaise" and others of that sort are forbidden.

Turks Shell Allies' Camp.

Berlin, June 9.—The Overseas News agency gave out the following: "A telegram from Constantinople states that the Turks repulsed British attacks at Seddul Bahr. Thousands of dead Englishmen covered the field. The Turks captured seventeen machine guns, as well as rifles and other war material."

TWENTY SIX HITS IN THIS CONTEST

Gettysburg Delayed in Climb to Upper Station in Blue Ridge Pennant Race. Three Pitchers Used without Desired Result.

Gettysburg's leap into second place was delayed a trifle on Tuesday when Martinsburg batted out sixteen hits and gave the Patriots the small end of a 9 to 8 score.

Lower started pitching for Gettysburg but he proved easy for the West Virginians. Rudolph followed and fared little better and then Howard was put in. He had pitched the greater part of the Mt. St. Mary's game the day previous, had been used Saturday against Chambersburg and did not have his usual stuff, so that he also failed to save the game.

Gettysburg got a life in the eighth when they batted in four runs, tying the score but Martinsburg came back in its half and put across the winning tally.

The team goes to Hagerstown today and Hoar will pitch. The same situation about second place still remains, the position remaining for us if we win from Hagerstown and Hanover loses to Martinsburg.

On the Safe Side.
"Why are you so anxious to be friendly with old Smuthe?" we ask our acquaintance. "Even if he were your friend he wouldn't do anything for you." "I know that," replied our acquaintance, who occasionally ties up his money in stocks. "What I want to do is to have him so friendly with me that he won't do anything to me."

Success.
The Greeks had a foot race in which speed and endurance were not the only tests. Each man at the start was given a lighted torch, and the laurel wreath was for the one who came in first, with his torch alight. Success in life is not merely reaching the goal, but more important still, in keeping the light of God burning in our hurrying souls.—Exchange.

The Bilious Optimist.
When a man with noticeable bilious eyes and liver spots on the projections of his face "lays himself out" to talk optimism to us, something seems to whisper to us that he is bluffing himself (or us) for some little purpose of his own. Because when a bilious person talks optimism, his conversation suggests a superciliousness of expository motivation, so to speak.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

"Bankrupt."
The discussion on the etymology of the word "bank" in Mr. Justice Darling's court might have been carried a step further by the illustration of our term "bankrupt," says a London paper. The old Venetian money-changers and lenders carried on their business at a stand or bench (banca), and when one was unable to meet his obligations his "banca" was broken (rupta).

The Test.
Life is a thing given us for a few years. Its only value lies in the use we make of it. Lose it we must, and very soon. But honor and duty are for all time. Why do we see a 'soldier's monument' in nearly every town of every state which fought for the Union? Not because these men lived, but because they died.—Agnes Repplier, in the Atlantic.

He Knew That Story.
The old soldier was again giving the youngsters accounts of the wonders he had experienced, especially in the way of climate. Said he: "I remember when we were in Fyzardum we used to toast our bread in the sun, and—" Youngster (interrupting): "Yes, I know; and you were supplied with corkscrews to draw your breath!"

A Missouri Statesman.
As chairman of the senate committee on foreign relations Senator William Joel Stone of Missouri holds a position of great power in these troublous times of almost worldwide war. Senator Stone is himself a pacifist and believes with most other citizens of the United States that there is little to be gained for a nation in subjecting international questions to the arbitrament of arms. In a recent statement about the sinking of the Lusitania Senator Stone said: "We all want to avoid doing anything that would bring the they fail to do so then the responsibility of violating a neutral power should rest upon their heads. The government of the United States will maintain its position, but it is well for other nations to know that we will not look with indifference upon the violation of the rights and privileges of our own government or our own citizens."

Senator Stone was born in Kentucky in 1848, was educated in Missouri university and admitted to the bar in 1869. He served three terms in the lower house of congress and for four years was governor of Missouri. He was elected to the United States senate in 1903 and has since been regularly re-elected.

How Railroads Create Wealth.

Our marvelous crops would count for nothing if forced to lie in the fields where they grow, or driven to seek such markets only as the farmer's team could reach. The cotton crop which brings to our shores annually nearly half a billion dollars of foreign gold, would be but a fruitless burden on southern winds if there were no railways to carry it to the seaboard. We take from our mines and forests and factories twenty billions of dollars each year, but without means of transportation these costly products would be worthless junk.—Robert Maier in Leslie's.

The French Horn.

The French horn, or cor de chasse, is regarded by some musicians as the sweetest and mellowest of all the wind instruments. In Beethoven's time it was little else than the old hunting horn, which for the convenience of the mounted hunter was arranged in spiral convolutions to be slipped over the head and carried resting on one shoulder and under the opposite arm. The Germans still call it the waldhorn—that is, "forest horn."

You're a Brick.

No doubt you have often heard one man say to another when he is very much pleased, "You are a brick, old fellow!"

Perhaps you will think it is a very queer thing to say, but I will tell you how such a saying is said to have come in use.

Many, many years ago a famous king sent an ambassador to another famous king. The ambassador was much surprised to find that the king whom he was visiting had no walls around his city.

In those days, of course, in order to keep out enemies nearly every city was surrounded by strong and high walls. So the surprised ambassador said to the king, "Why, you have no walls for the city."

"We have," said the king.

"Where? Where?" asked the ambassador, more surprised than ever.

The king then pointed to his large army, which was not far away, and said, with a smile: "There are the walls of my city. Every man you see is a brick."

The king meant that an enemy would have to defeat those soldiers before they—that is, the enemy—could enter the city.

The Pathfinder.

In the middle of the floor, some little distance apart, place sofa cushions, stools, umbrella stands, large vases or lamps, etc. From among the company choose some smart young man who "was never boxed" and ask him to first walk over the course around and between these articles, so as to fix in his mind their situation and distance apart.

He is then blindfolded and told to find his way carefully among them again so as not to touch anything.

Very gingerly he will do so, and when, triumphant over his success, the bandage is taken from his eyes to his surprise not an article remains on the floor. All were quickly and quietly removed while he was being blindfolded.

His cautious movements and tacking here and there to avoid the obstacles that are not there make fun for the onlookers.

Mind Reading With Cards.

Five cards are shown, and some one person is asked to think of two cards in the lot, after which the performer places the cards behind his back and removes any two cards, then shows the remaining three and asks if the two cards in mind have been removed. The answer is always yes, as it cannot be otherwise.

To prepare the cards, take any ten cards from the pack and paste the back of one card to another, making five double cards. Removing any two cards behind the performer's back reduces the number of cards to three and when these are turned over they will not have the same faces so that the ones first seen cannot be shown the second time even though all five cards were turned over and shown.

Riddles.

What is the difference between a tunnel and an ear trumpet? One is hollowed out, and the other is holler ed in.

Why didn't the last dove return to the ark? Because she had sufficient ground for remaining.

Why are authors who treat of physiognomy like soldiers? Because they write about faces.

What is the difference between the czar and a beggar? One issues mandates; the other manifests toes with out his shoes.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Hall Bonistelle, artist-photographer, preparing for the day's work in his studio, is reminded by Floodie Fisher, his assistant, of a party he is to give in the studio that night, and warned that his business is in bad financial shape.

CHAPTER II—Mr. Doremus, attorney and justice of the peace, calls and informs Hall that his Uncle John's will has left him $4,000.00 on condition that he marry before his twenty-eighth birthday, which begins at midnight that night.

CHAPTER III—Mrs. Rosa Royaton calls at the studio and Hall asks her to marry him at once. She spurs for time, but finally agrees to give him an answer at the party that night.

CHAPTER IV—Miss Carolyn Dallys calls and Hall proposes to her. She agrees to give him an answer at the party.

CHAPTER V—Rosamund Gale, artist model, calls. Hall tries to rush her into an immediate marriage, but she, too, does not answer until the evening. Floodie says Hall has ordered trouble delivered at the house.

CHAPTER VI.

It was two o'clock in the afternoon. Floodie was crying. Seated at her desk, her bills littered, her account books in disorder, her head was down on her arms, in an attitude of dismal abandonment. She did not weep, she cried. Hall Bonistelle married—and not to her! Married to whom? Ah, that was the worst of it. If Floodie had known the identity of her rival her sorrow might have, before now, been transmuted into anger. Would Mrs. Royaton, or Carolyn Dallys become Mrs. Bonistelle? Or, worst of all, would the wedding ring be worn by Rosamund Gale? Floodie didn't know. Hall didn't know. Even Rosamund didn't know herself. Hence Floodie's tears, wet and heavy, splashing, trickling, soaking the dark blue blotter of Floodie's desk.

At two-ten sundry sounds, translated by Floodie's intimate knowledge of Hall Bonistelle's ways, indicated his approach. She sat hastily down at the typewriter and began to print off this interesting message:

—Quiz Jack: thy frowns vex G. D. Plumb.

Interesting mainly because, a concoction of Floodie's debutante days at the typewriter, it contained every known letter of the alphabet. Now it served to focus her mind on her fingers, and hide her face from scrutiny.

When Hall came in, she had copied the statement nine times, and seemed too busy for speech.

"Say, I'm going out, Flo!" he announced, and tapped with his stick on the floor thoughtfully.

Floodie kept right on: "thy frowns vex G. D. Plumb." But love and curiosity won against embarrassment. She wheeled round in her chair. "What are you going to do, Mr. Bonistelle? There's work for you to do, I should think."

"Lord, I don't feel much like work today, but I've finished Mrs. Royaton's plates, Catty Dallys', too, some of her poses are not half bad. She's almost pretty, did you know it? I didn't have time to develop Rosamund. She can wait; I expect I'll have plenty of time for her later."

At the infection Floodie turned to him again with a heartbroken look. "Oh, Mr. Bonistelle! Have you—really—made up your mind that she—?" Floodie couldn't finish. She choked.

Hall laughed. "Lord, made up my mind! What good would that do? It's up to them, now. Well, I'm on the way to buy the ring—and I ought to get a suit of clothes to go away in—I haven't anything at all to wear."

Floodie bit her lip hard. "Oh, Mr. Bonistelle!"—was she going to break down, after all? In despair, her fingers flew to the keys of her machine. "thy frowns vex G. D. Plumb. Quiz Jack—"

He tapped her playfully with the tip of his stick. "Well, I'm off, Flo. See you tonight. Be here early!" Floodie turned a wretched face to him. Her eyes were wet.

"But I don't know how you want the rooms decorated, Mr. Bonistelle!"

"Oh, I don't care—use your own taste. It'll be all right. You can do it. So long, Flo!" And he was off. Floodie went to the washstand behind the screen and dabbed her eyes in cold water, then inspected herself mercilessly in the mirror. A sigh. She made a face at herself and returned listlessly to work.

But mental occupation was impossible; Floodie had too much on her mind already. Manual exercise was what she needed to keep her from giving up to her misery. There were the freshly developed plates—she went into the dark room to get them.

Taking the rack full of glass negatives, she emerged and walked into the office. Busy with melancholy thoughts of Hall Bonistelle, a shock awaited her. There was a stranger in the room.

"Mr. Bonistelle in?"

He was a tall, gaunt, stoop-shouldered man, with a long upper lip. Deep lines, sharp as saw cuts, ran down his cheeks, and from the ends of his gashlike mouth. His neck was flabby, the cords showing like the ribs of a fan. Rusty provincial garments hung loosely upon him, draping his bony body, and in his hands he held a soft, felt, prehistoric hat. He was not at all a city person; one almost smelt salt marshes at low tide, and clams. His ill-cut hair, too, suggested wet seaweed.

Floodie, at another time, would have had trouble in restraining her smile. Now her heart was too heavy; her sense of the ridiculous inhibited. She merely looked him over carelessly, added him up as some sort of drummer person, and replied that her employer was not in.

"Ain't in, eh?" He looked her over inquisitively. "What be you, anyway, his wife?" He pierced her with his little blue eyes.

The words stung her to the quick; her nerves were all exposed. She managed her face, however, and replied, "No, I'm his assistant, that's all. Bookkeeper, sort of."

He was still watching her shrewdly. "Ain't going to marry him, be ye?"

Floodie, sensitive as she was, could not help showing a little of her distress. The color began to rise on her cheeks. In her embarrassment she bridled. "Is that any business of yours?" she answered in meek resentment.

"Yep," he said, "considerable, as it happens. Hassingbury's my name. Jonas B. Ain't never heard o' me, be ye?"

Floodie gasped. "Oh! Not Mr. Bonistelle's cousin Jonas?"

—He nodded solemnly. "Fust cousin—once removed."

"Oh," she exclaimed, "Mr. Bonistelle will be awfully sorry to have missed you. But I'm afraid he won't be back till late this afternoon."

"Ain't in, Eh?"

"Won't, eh? Well, now, that's too bad. I did want to have a little dish o' gossip with Hall. But, come to think of it I dunno but perhaps you'd do just as well." Again he inspected the room. "Nice place he's got here. Don't live here, though, does he?"

Floodie pointed into the studio. "Yes, he has a room in there."

"And where do you live, miss?" Jonas demanded boldly.

His tone was offensive, and Floodie's blush deepened. She managed to be polite. "Oh, quite a way from here. In darkest Harlem."

"H'm!" Jonas' eyes were fastened on her keenly, watching every change in Floodie's expressive face. "Ain't sweet on him, be ye?"

Floodie rose in wrath. What right had he—why should he stumble so on the truth! It was torture for her. She walked toward the stockroom trembling. "If you'll excuse me, Mr. Hassingbury, I've got some pictures to print." She started to enter.

"Hold on a minute, miss. I want to talk to ye!" said Jonas, beckoning with a bony finger.

"I'm sorry, but I'm awfully busy," Floodie stammered.

"Wall," he remarked, "so be I. This is important, though. I guess you can spare me five minutes or so. I didn't come up all the way from Branford, Connecticut, and miss prayer meetin' night at that just for the fun of it. See here: Is Hall married, or not? That's what I want to know."

Still Floodie's color mounted. "No, he's not. Why?"

"See here, miss!" Jonas beckoned again. "Set ye down; you needn't be afraid, I ain't going to hurt ye. I'm a religious man and a church member; ye can trust me. Mebbe you think I'm stickin' my nose into what's none of my business, but, land! I'm his cousin, and I guess I got a good right to know his plans on the subject o' matrimony." He gazed at her cruelly. "And I expect you know why. Now, don't ye?"

"No," said Floodie faintly, leaning on the desk for support.

"I see ye know more'n ye're willin' to let on," he continued. "I wa'n't born yesterday, miss, nor yet the day before, and I know somethin' about women, if I be a bachelor. Up in Branford they call me weather-wise. Wall, the signs on a woman's face is just as easy, sometimes. Now see here—" he hitched his chair nearer to Floodie. "You don't want Hall Bonistelle to git married no more'n I do. Ain't that so?"

Floodie stared at him fascinated, as a bird by a snake. Try as she could, it was impossible to deny his accusation.

"Hold on a minute, now!" He shook his finger impressively. "I'd give a good deal if I was satisfied he wouldn't be married before midnight."

Floodie could stand it no longer. It was useless to attempt to hide her feelings from this man. Her heart was bursting. "Oh, so would I, if I had the money!" she cried, woe-begone.

Jonas leaned back, with a smile of victory on his face. "Wall, I guess I got to the woman of it at last," he gloated. "All women is just alike, when you come right down to it. 'One man among a thousand have I found; but a woman among all those have I not found'—that is, different. But that's neither here nor there. I suspected you was sweet on Hall; your face gave you dead away. Wall, then, miss, he brought it out deliberately, 'seems to me our interests ought to be identical.'"

"What d'you mean?" Something in Floodie's subconsciousness was awakened.

"You, bein' a woman, don't want him to marry anybody else. Wall, neither do I." He watched her closely, heartlessly.

"I see," said Floodie frigidly, "because you'd lose a fortune."

"Oh, it ain't the money, miss, don't you misinterpret my motives. I don't want a cent of it for myself. It's what I can do with it. See here; if Hall gets that money, he's bound to throw it away on all sorts of foolishness. If he marries tonight, some sheep-headed, extravagant woman will have the spendin' of it." He watched the shaft strike Floodie, and went on. "Whereas, if I inherit it—why, I got my plans all laid out a'ready." He leaned forward earnestly. "Why, do you know, miss, they's heathen in the tropics what don't know what clothes be, let alone the Bible. They tell me they ain't a toothbrush nor a pair o' corsets in all Polynesia. And all of them miserable niggers got to be damned everlasting. Then they's hospitals I intend to endow, and tracts ought to be printed." But Floodie's eyes were cast down. He saw that he had lost his audience, and came back to his best argument. "Think o' Hall's wife throwin' that cash round on parties, and low-necked dresses—to say nothin' o' balls and concerts and theaters!"

"Well," Floodie said, with a pathetic look in her face, "I don't see what we can do about it. He's made up his mind to marry tonight, and he's already proposed to three women."

Jonas whistled long and low. "Looks like we got to get to work in a hurry, don't it? See here, miss," he spoke slowly and emphatically. "You can do it. Why, women is born for tricks like this. What's that Jeremiah says? 'A woman shall compass a man.' That's right, too. You'll find a way and depend on me to help all I can. What d'ye say?"

Floodie's mind had already jumped to the task. Why not try to save Hall?—that was the excuse she gave herself. To be disloyal to him was unthinkable, but to prevent a lifelong unhappiness due to his marrying any one of the three women he had proposed to—ah, that was another thing! What if she could accomplish it, and get the best of this scheming hypocrite into the bargain? There was a magnificent chance for a woman's strategy! Suddenly she thought came, beautiful, complete. She jumped up excitedly. "I know!" she cried.

"What? Got an idea a'ready?" Jonas grinned.

"Yes! I'll tell you. I'm going to get those three women together in this room—and then—I'll just let nature take its course! If something doesn't happen, then I don't know anything about women."

Jonas chuckled, delighted. "Wall, that will be a picnic, won't it! By jiminy, I'd like to see the fun!"

"No," said Floodie, "you'll have to leave. I've got lots to do, if I'm to manage this thing, and I've got to do it alone. Now, let's see! Wait a minute—Hall's giving a party tonight. Suppose I tell him that I invited you, and you come round at about eleven o'clock. Then I'll tell you how matters are going."

"Eleven o'clock! Lord, I generally git to bed by ten."

"You won't tonight, then. Better drink some coffee if you're sleepy. And I guess it'll be worth sitting up for. Good afternoon, Mr. Hassingbury!" Floodie did not offer to shake hands.

Jonas gazed at her in ever-growing admiration. "Say, miss," he ventured, "it ain't often I get loony over a woman. I don't I trust 'em enough. But I've took considerable fancy to you, somehow. You got a good head on your shoulders, you have!"

Floodie evaded his hand. "Well, it's likely to stay there, I'm afraid. At any rate, it'll never be on yours, Mr. Hassingbury."

With which Floodie went, without honoring him with another glance into the stockroom, leaving him to take his departure alone.

The Acme of Consideration.

"I shall never find another man like George was," means the lady in heavy black. The friend beside her pats her arm soothingly. "He never gave me a harsh word," continues the disconsolate one. "Why, there were many times when he spoke to me in kinder tones than he used to the cook—and you know how much we were afraid she would get angry and quit."

Opportunity Ought to Use a Club.

"It may be true," said J. Pulte Bloom, "that Opportunity knocks but once at every man's door, but so far as I am concerned, I must be fearfully hard of hearing, or else old Opportunity has a decidedly velvet touch."

BULGARIA MAY BE NEXT TO JOIN WAR

Holds Key to Constantinople and Asks High Price.

WANTS CASH DOWN TERMS.

Balkan Nation, on Whose Decision Await Roumania and Greece, Is Ready to Side With Allies, but Stands Out For Guarantees Her Share in Spoils Shall Include Macedonia.

All eyes in Europe are now turned upon Bulgaria. That Balkan state holds not only the key to Constantinople, but the power to decide whether two other peoples as well as herself shall enter the war, making it a conflict of no fewer than fourteen nations.

It is the opinion of the diplomats that the effect of Bulgaria's intervention on the side of the allies would be felt much more quickly than that of Italy despite the far greater strength of the Italian forces. The reason is that her action would at once release Roumania, who would rush to support the left wing of the Russians and would complete the ring of steel forming round the central empires.

Bulgaria nowhere touches the frontier of Austria. She lies to the south of Roumania and the east of Servia. Close to her border stands Bucharest, the capital of Roumania. This geographical situation keeps Roumania out of the war because of the possibility that Bulgaria might attack her from the rear.

Was Expected to Aid Kaiser.

For long it was thought that if Bulgaria intervened it would be on the side of the kaiser. But that has been altered by the determined nature of the attack on the Dardanelles by the allies. The Bulgarians now feel sure that Constantinople must fall. Bulgaria has promised Roumania not to attack her should Roumania join in the fight. But will she go further? Her decision cannot long be postponed. It is believed.

Bulgaria's position today merits understanding. To know the forces that bear upon its choice is to have the "incomprehensible Balkans" illuminated and a light thrown upon the war which is essential to an analysis of the motives hidden in the intricacies of international politics.

Bulgaria, it must be remembered, has two ambitions—one to regain Macedonia, which it believes is ethnically Bulgarian; the other, to move its Turkish boundary back to the Media-Epos line. The Macedonian ambition was responsible for the first Balkan war, which was fought, as far as Bulgaria was concerned, to free the Bulgarians of Macedonia from Turkish rule.

His Interest Is Macedonia.

No Bulgarian has ever thought of the results of the second Balkan war as being permanent. He wants back what is his by nationality in Macedonia and what was his by conquest in Thrace. His primary interest is in Macedonia. Bulgarian policy in this war plays about these ambitions.

But, having been bitten once by the diplomacy of the powers, Bulgaria now regards all with an icy suspicion. She wants to be allowed to occupy the territory she desires and do it before she needs to strike a blow, and in return she will go to war in a minute, for Bulgaria is not interested in the war as a moral proposition; she is interested only in Bulgaria.

But an occupation of the territory is out of the question as things stand. Servia cannot brook it until she has Bosnia and Herzegovina. Greece threw out her best statesman for daring to think of making concessions to Bulgaria. The entente can only promise Premier Radoslavoff demands cash down.

The opposition, led by Malinoff and Guechloff, is strongly in favor of accepting the promises. It is not so much that the opposition places complete reliance on the promises as that it entertains the fear all may be lost by delay.

"There are other guarantees besides occupation," said Malinoff recently. "Participation in the war is the best assurance of success after the war. The tide must not be lost. The time has come, if not for action, for preparing for action."

Watch Constantinople.

Only one thing is holding Bulgaria back—the slowness of the allies' advance in their attack on the Dardanelles by land. This is enabling Radoslavoff to stand firm in the bargaining and to insist on his cash down terms.

Forcing the strait by water the Bulgarians believe to be out of the question, for England cannot sacrifice her whole Mediterranean fleet. Taking the strait by land may look easy enough on paper, but is proving quite the reverse in practice.

To Constantinople Bulgaria undoubtedly holds the key. The Bulgarians know this. Their only fear is that the allies might forestall them by landing an army on Bulgarian soil to march on the Turkish capital, but they are realizing on the fact that the allies do so would have to violate Bulgarian neutrality. Every one in Sofia is talking politics. The words Macedonia and Thrace fall at every cafe table. Promises and rumors of promises fill the air. The moment Constantinople should fall or seem about to fall Bulgaria will be frightened into the fight.

SAVED THE TOWN.

The Fisherman Lied, Stuck to His Story and Got a Surprise.

More than two centuries ago, when an allied English and Dutch fleet, under Admiral Russell, approached Les Sables d'Olonne, on the bay of Biscay, to bombard it, a difficulty arose. The conformation of the shore partly concealed the settlement behind a ridge, and they did not know how to train their guns. But they had captured a fishing smack in the bay, and Admiral Russell summoned the fisherman, Daniel Fricaud, and ordered him to tell exactly how the town lay and where to aim in order to destroy its principal buildings. Fricaud, who appeared to be a poor, ignorant fellow, very much frightened, pointed to a pier with a group of old, rickety buildings. The admiral was doubtful, but the trembling fisherman assured him that just beyond and almost exactly in range was the market square, the very heart of the town.

"Do you understand," asked the admiral sternly, "that if you are telling me a lie I shall soon find it out and have you hanged from the yardarm of my ship?"

"I know," answered the fisherman. "and if I have lied you must hang me. I can only tell you—it is there that you should aim your guns."

Convinced that the man would not venture a deception, Admiral Russell ordered the bombardment to begin. A little while after shells had begun to fall behind the screening ridge and shabby wharf, and great columns of smoke arose, which rapidly increased in volume. It seemed that half the place must be on fire. Only when he thought its destruction nearly enough accomplished did the fleet withdraw—first releasing Fricaud and his fishing boat.

The fisherman, amazed and anxious, hastened to the town to learn what could possibly have happened, for he knew well that in the quarter that had been shelled there were only a few worthless sheds and storehouses. That was why, at the risk of his neck, he had pointed it out. Never for a moment had he thought of aiding the enemy to destroy his native place, and he had fully expected to pay the penalty. What could the smoke be?

It proved that the inhabitants had practiced a clever ruse. Seeing that the shells were falling exactly where they did the least harm, they had built huge bonfires to convey the impression of a conflagration. The trick had probably saved the town. It had certainly saved a brave fisherman from being hanged.—Youth's Companion.

Rhubarb Conserve.

To each pint of fresh rhubarb, peel and cut into small pieces, add one cup of brown sugar and let it stand for two hours. Add one-half cupful of seeded raisins and the juice of one lemon. Cook this slowly until the desired consistency is obtained. Place two young sweet or rose geranium leaves in the bottom of the tumbler and pour the hot conserve over them. This gives a very aromatic and pleasing flavor.

Bean Soup.

Boil the end of a ham with two quarts of beans that have been soaked for twelve hours or overnight. Soak the beans tends to keep them whole until the ham is tender. They should not really boil, only simmer in plenty of water so that when done there is a third more water than beans. Serve as a soup, with toast or crackers.

Bananas and Rhubarb.

A new way of using rhubarb is to stew equal parts of it and of bananas separately until nearly done and finish them together, with sugar and lemon to suit the taste. When preparing oranges and rhubarb allow only half the quantity of orange to a given quantity of rhubarb.

Beautiful Scenes Uplift.

ITALIANS FORCE FOE'S FIRST LINE

Gross Isonzo and Attack Austrians North of Tolmino.

FIGHTING AROUND GRADISCA

The Teuton Offensive Is Said to Be Broken, But That Struggle Is Still a Hard One.

Udine, June 9.—Italian forces are engaged with the forces of Austria on the eastern banks of the Isonzo river at points north of Tolmino.

The Italians are fighting also around Gradisca, evidently with the intention of encircling this location. Caporetto, Cormons, Verso, Cervignano, Terzo, Porto Buso and Gradisca, stretching in a line roughly north and south from the head of the Gulf of Trieste, are in their possession.

It apparently is the intention of the Italian military leaders to deprive the Austrians of their first line of defense, that along the Isonzo river, on their own territory. To this end Montebello also has been occupied, as have been the mountains between the Isonzo and Idria rivers. These positions dominate the towns of Volzana, Bonzina, Canale and Descla, all on the Isonzo.

By sea the operations are being conducted with the idea of gaining possession of the Gulf of Panzano, whence it will be easier to attack Montebello.

A dispatch from Ljubljana says the sound of a heavy cannonade can be heard on Lake Garda. The Austrian artillery and forts are reported to have suffered considerably.

The dispatch adds that the Austrian offensive on the Isonzo seems to have been broken, but that the struggle is still a hard one. The Italians are declared to be shelling the Austrians vigorously from Monte Nero and to have destroyed, among other things, an important convoy of munitions.

GERMANS FIGHT ITALIANS

Kaiser's Subjects Reported Side by Side With Austrians.

Geneva, June 9.—German soldiers are fighting with the Austrians against the Italians on the plateau of Estavanne, in the Trentino. It is reported that Italians clashed with Germans for the first time in the war in the fighting there.

Extensive preparations are being made by the Austrians to resist the invasion of Italian armies. General Dankl arrived at Trent on Sunday, coming from the Russian front to take command of the Austrian armies. A considerable number of German troops also has been brought into the Trent region.

IN TRANCE FROM REVIVAL

Hazleton Girl Found Unconscious At Religious Meeting.

Hazleton, Pa., June 9.—Miss Ethel Landis, a teacher in the Walnut street school of this city, is in a trance that was brought on, it is said, by religious excitement during the revival campaign conducted here by Mrs. Mary Ellis, of Philadelphia.

Her condition became known in spite of efforts of her friends and school authorities to keep it quiet. On Monday morning, when she failed to appear at her post, an investigation resulted in her room door being broken open.

The girl was found in bed, with an open Bible in her right hand, and her left hand on her forehead. Efforts to revive her failed.

Mrs. Ellis, called by telephone, refused to respond. She warned the teacher's friends not to disturb her and to be very careful not to throw water in her face. Friends held to the idea that she was hypnotized.

Repeat Venice Air Raid.

Rome, June 9.—Another Austrian air raid was made over the Adriatic coast of Italy. At Venice a woman and a girl were wounded. The following statement was given out by the admiralty: "An enemy aeroplane flew over Venice and bombarded the city. The damage was slight. A woman and a girl were wounded. Bombs were also thrown elsewhere on the coast line. One person was killed and a number injured."

Bomb For Famed Tunnel.

Geneva, June 9.—A dispatch received here from Brig, Switzerland, declares that a man has been arrested at Domodossola, in Italy, charged with the intention of blowing up the famous Simplon tunnel. This individual is presumed to be an Austrian agent. He had in his possession a plan of the tunnel, which is twelve and one-half miles long.

Gun Tale a Lie, Says Steward.
London, June 9.—"It is an infamous lie for any one to say I told him the Lusitania was armed. She was not armed, and any one making affidavit that I said so is a perjurer." In these words John F. Leach, a second cabin steward of the Lusitania, replied in Eastbourne to the report that he told persons in New York the liner carried guns.

Ernesto Nathan, the ex-mayor of Rome, who has been the official Italian representative at the Panama-Pacific Exposition, has returned to Italy and will probably go to the front at once. He is a reservist in the army. He asserted, as he said, that Italy entered the war to get back, if possible, territory lost in previous wars.

VILLA MAKES PEACE OFFER TO CARRANZA

Proposes Conference to Prevent Intervention.

El Paso, Tex., June 9.—General Francisco Villa has decided to ask General Venustiano Carranza to agree to a neutral treaty for a conference to consider the suggestion in President Wilson's statement, according to a telegram from Colonel Enrique Perez Rul, private secretary to Villa.

The Rul statement relates that Villa decided to invite Carranza to agree to a truce, "to prevent further sacrifice in the republic that might produce intervention," that when Villa, in keeping with this suggestion, ordered his troops to retire, General Obregon started in pursuit, "bringing on a battle in the station of Leon."

"This obliged our forces which came from Silao, commanded by General Villa, vigorously to attack the enemy, dispersing them after inflicting heavy losses," says the statement.

The Villa forces have retreated to Lagos, state of Guanajuato, thirty-eight miles north of Leon, Rul says, "without the loss of many men or any war materials." He also asserts that Villa retains quantities of military equipment captured in the battle in Silao last week and has "ordered some brigades south to recapture Leon and continue the campaign."

Unofficial reports that filtered in lead observers to believe that Villa troops have suffered more severely than Colonel Rul's telegram indicated.

A Notary's Discomfiture

By DWIGHT NORWOOD

Many years ago in the city of Rheims, in France, which has of late been the scene of fighting between the French and the Germans, there lived an old notary. In France a notary is a lawyer, but in the olden time a lawyer was not of much more importance so far as his work was concerned than a notary is with us today. Jules Farieux, the notary of Rheims, had accumulated some 50,000 francs, which had come to him through small fees. This sum—$10,000 in our money—was quite a fortune in those days, especially in France, where everything was very cheap and one could live comfortably on a small income.

The old man had one child, a daughter, Delphine, to whom he expected to leave his property, and it was his expectation that she should marry a man having at least an equal amount. What was his chagrin, therefore, when he learned that she had fallen in love with Alphonse Du Bois, a young fellow who had just been graduated from a law school in Paris and settled in Rheims to practice his profession without a sou to his name. The notary simply forbade his daughter to have anything to do with the man.

One day three men came into Jules Farieux's office, and after asking if and being assured that he was the "distinguished notary" with whom so many persons trusted their affairs and their money they asked him to take care of 100,000 francs in gold which was theirs jointly. Jules accepted the trust, it being agreed that he should deduct 5 per cent of the amount when the money was returned. He was then asked to draw up a contract to that effect, in which he stipulated to pay over the money to the three men together and not to any one of two of them separately. The contract having been signed, the men departed, leaving the gold on a table. As the notary was gathering it up to put in his strong box one of the men returned, saying he had been deputed by the others to count the money before it was put away. While he was doing so a stranger came hurriedly into the office and, after taking the notary into a rear room, asked him some questions concerning a matter which he seemed to consider of immediate importance. The notary tried to get away from him, but found it impossible. When he was permitted to return to the other room both the money and the man who had been counting it were gone.

Farieux found himself in a very unpleasant position. He had received for 100,000 francs which he was to pay to the three owners together. One of them had taken the amount, and the notary would be obliged to indemnify the others, which would require nearly double all he possessed. He heard nothing from any of the men for a month; then one morning the two who had lost their share came to him and demanded it.

The notary believed that the men had conspired to swindle him, but unless he could prove this he had no hope of saving the little fortune he had been a lifetime in accumulating and which was to go to his daughter for a dowry. He made every effort to prove that the men were dishonest and in collusion, but was not able to do so.

After a formal demand for their money the two men put the case in the courts, and a day was set for trial. Alphonse Du Bois learned of the case from his sweetheart, Louise, and the probable loss of her dowry. He told her to say to her father that he would consent to his marriage with her. Louise gave the old man the message and it made him very angry.

"What?" he exclaimed. "Does this popinjay who has no experience in the law propose to do what I, who have been a notary for forty years, cannot do?"

Louise argued with her father, saying that nothing would be lost by permitting Alphonse to take the case and something might be gained. Since the old man's principal grief was that she would be deprived of her dowry, she finally won him over, but not until the case had been called in court, and if any defense was to be put in it must be done at once. Then the notary, who could see no possible excuse under the contract to avoid indemnifying the plaintiffs, agreed that in case Du Bois saved his fortune it should go to Louise as his bride.

The young lawyer arose in court and called for a reading of the contract. When the reader came to the words, "And the said Farieux shall pay to the said depositors together and to no one or two separately the sum of 100,000 francs," Du Bois stopped him and said:

"Your honor, my client is ready to pay the 100,000 francs specified under the contract to the three depositors together, but is prohibited by the contract from paying the money to two of them separately."

The judge dismissed the case, for the moment the third man who had gone off with the funds should appear he would be arrested, and the notary need not pay to be present.

The man who had gone away with the deposit never returned, and the notary was never again called on to pay it. Du Bois married Louise, but declined to permit her to accept the dowry. The reputation he made by his handling of the case in court brought him a practice that eventually made him rich.

HELPFUL HINTS FOR HOUSEWIVES

Combined Suction Washer
and Water Heater.

For the household which does not happen to be equipped with a laundry, a washer has been invented which will do away with much of the drudgery of the Monday morning washing. It is a combination of the suction washer and a stove, made entirely of metal and dispenses with the annoyance of carrying water from the stove to scene of washing operations. The advantage of having the fire under the wash water is that it enables the cleansing operation to be done much more efficiently and quickly, and this business is facilitated by the force pump which is mounted on the top of the washer. It is only necessary to throw the soiled clothes in the heated water, and then a few minutes' pumping on the handle is said to drive the dirt from the fabric.

Cleaning Brushes.

When house brushes require cleaning put a sufficient quantity of tepid water into a flat pan to cover the bristles, but not the backs. To each quart of water add three tablespoonfuls of ammonia. Allow the brushes to soak for ten minutes, raise in cold water until it is clear and then dry the brushes in the air, bristles downward. Treated in this manner brushes seldom warp. Never use soap in washing hair brushes. Take a piece of soda, dissolve it in warm water and stand the brush in it, taking care that the water only covers the bristles. It will almost immediately become white and clean. Then stand it to dry in the open air with the bristles downward, and it will be found to be as firm as a new brush.

To Wash Woolen Trousers.

White woolen or gray woolen trousers, if washed with care in two waters—one soapy, the second clear, with a dash of blue in each—may look quite as well as when new if washed quickly, dried quickly and pressed when slightly damp, not left to lie about, but washed, dried and pressed at once. Trousers should be pressed upon the wrong side without making any crease, then turned upon the right side and the crease made as required with a slightly damp cloth, twice doubled, between the iron and trousers, put to air and laid away between the folds of a clean dust sheet. They will look perfectly new when again required for wear.

To Clean Bookbindings.

To clean cloth bindings on books, wash them lightly with a soft sponge dipped in a mixture of a half ounce of the best glue dissolved in one pint of warm water and one teaspoonful of glycerin and a little flour paste. When dry, rub well with a chamolite skin.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

DELICIOUS RHUBARB RECIPES.

STEWED rhubarb is known to all as every housekeeper, but even this homely dish may be transformed if a few raisins, a little grated lemon peel or bits of sliced orange are added when it is put on to cook.

Authorities differ about skinning the rhubarb, many contending that if the stalks are young and delicately tinted with pink this is not necessary, and undoubtedly when it is not peeled it gives the cooked fruit a beautiful pink color. As examples of delicious methods of preparing this fruit the following suggestions are offered:

Rhubarb Conserve.

The ingredients required are two quarts of fresh rhubarb, cut into small pieces, one quarter of a pound of shelled and broken walnuts, one orange, two heaping cupfuls of sugar and half a pound of seeded raisins. Place the prepared fruit in an enameled saucepan, add the juice and yellow pulp of the orange with the other ingredients and simmer over a very moderate heat for half an hour. Be careful to stir frequently, so that the conserve will not scorch. When cooked to the consistency of marmalade pour into jelly glasses and the next day cover with paraffin. This is a delicious sweetmeat to serve with toasted muffins or as a filling for ten sandwiches.

Rhubarb Custard Pie.

Slice and stew ten stalks of fresh rhubarb that have been cut into small pieces. When tender mash fine and press through a colander. For each pie use the yolks of two eggs, a heaping cupful of sugar, two-thirds of a cupful of rich milk, one teaspoonful of butter and a little grated nutmeg. Mix well and bake with an undercrust only, as an ordinary custard pie.

Rhubarb Shortcake.

Cut up the rhubarb after selecting reddest stalks. Place the fruit in a granite saucepan, with the strained juice of two oranges and a little of the grated peel. Simmer gently until tender, add granulated sugar to taste and cook until the mixture is quite thick. Remove from the fire, let cool slightly and spread between a shortcake that has been split open and buttered. Pour the rest of the fruit over the top and serve immediately with thick cream. This is an excellent shortcake and is rather unusual.

LAUNCHING A BIG VESSEL.

Always a Risky Task For Which Great Preparations Are Made.

To slide a steel structure as big as a thirty-story office building down hill into the water and have it arrive right side up without damage is a big job, even in these days of big achievements.

The builders of the latest Dreadnought risked nearly $7,000,000 worth of material and labor when the launching triggers were released. The outcome depended on the correctness of calculations made before the big fighting ship's keel was laid on the blocks, for before the first construction work on a ship is begun the preparations for its launching must be started.

It is comparatively easy to build a ship on land, but to get it into the water is another matter, as Robinson Crusoe discovered after working seven years to construct a boat which, when finished, proved so big that he could not launch it. After the Great Eastern, for forty-three years the largest ship in the world, was built in 1858 it took three months to get it afloat.

The larger the vessel the more ticklish is the job of sliding it safely into the water. Although years of experience and careful study have reduced the methods used to a standard practice, yet there is always a degree of uncertainty about the operation. In spite of the navy's record of an unbroken series of successful launchings, those responsible for each succeeding one experience considerable anxiety until the crisis is safely past. Even though every known precaution has been taken there is always the chance that some unknown factor may ruin the plan and wreck the ship.—Crosby McCarthy in Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Australia's Stony Desert.

The great stony desert of north Australia was discovered by Captain Sturt, an Australian explorer, in 1845-6. It is north of the river Darling and is about 300 miles long and 100 broad, consisting of sandy dunes or ridges. Its want of trees, except along the creeks, gives the country a sterile appearance. These ridges were probably formed by the joint effect of winds and a gradually retreating sea.

Chicago.

The word Chicago is taken from the Indian word "Chicagoua," the redskin word for thunder and name of the Indian thunder god. The name was given by the Indians to the "Chicago river," an inlet into Lake Michigan, and this gives its name to the city.—Indianapolis News.

MAIN POINTS IN DECISION THAT STEEL COMPANY IS NO TRUST.

In the suit brought by the government against the United States Steel corporation the federal court decided that:

The corporation had not violated the Sherman law.

It deserved the commendation of the public for fair dealing.

More bigness of business does not constitute a trust.

The famous Gary dinners were unlawful, but had been discontinued.

President Roosevelt was justified in refusing to interfere with the absorption of the Tennessee Coal and Iron company, the absorption being legal.

Andrew Carnegie is exonerated from illegal participation in the sale of the Carnegie company.

In ten years the steel company had increased its business about 40 per cent, but nine great competing companies had increased from 63 to 3,700 per cent.

And the field of enterprise was as open to competition as before the corporation was formed.

Suit was filed Oct. 23, 1912.

Hearings began May 6, 1912.

Suit argued in October, 1914.

Case decided June 3, 1915.

Testimony filed 15,000 printed pages.

Government alleged that capitalization of $1,402,846,000 contained $600,000,000 of "water" and that plants acquired by the corporation controlled between 60 and 82 per cent of the country's total production.

Suit cost $500,000, of which about $400,000 was borne by the corporation.

THANKS FOR AID TO RYNDAM.

Holland-American Line Praises Naval Men For Brilliant Seamanship.

Secretary Daniels has received a letter from the Holland-American line expressing the company's appreciation and gratitude for the aid given by the battleships Texas and South Carolina to the steamship Ryndam when she was injured in collision off Nantucket May 26.

The South Carolina took on board the passengers and crew of the Ryndam, totaling 230 persons. Among the passengers were thirty-two women and ten children, including four babies. The accident occurred at 3:40 a. m. and all the passengers and crew were transferred to the South Carolina by 4:30. The Texas conveyed the Ryndam to the Ambrose lightship.

The letter remarks on the efficient work done by the officers and crew of the naval vessels and the hospitality shown the passengers and crew of the stricken ship and states that it will always be remembered as a brilliant example of good seamanship and splendid comradeship.

On the Other Side.

"Is Mrs. Gaussip a friend of yours?"

"No; she's a friend of my wife."

"Isn't that the same thing?"

"Not at all. She feels very sorry for my wife."

Then Silence Was Profound.

"Yes, once. Some one had asked which of those present was the eldest."
